IMPORTANT TO INVALIDS,

THE GREAT ELECTRO-MAGNETIC BELT OF LIFE

(For Ladies or Gentlemen.) Will cure every form of disease known to man. 200,000 persons have used them in the last four years with wonderful success. Disease in any of its forms radically cured by applying this wonderful working garment. Its value over any of the Electric Garments or Chain Belts is easily understood. This "Belt of Life" can be worn over the under garment and next to the skin, therefore it does not cause shocks or sores. It will last, full power, for years and may be used by many members of one family. The infusion of magnetism into the system through the spine and stomach vitalizes every part of the human body from head to foot. Thousands exclaim, "I would not part with my Body Belt."

FOR ANY MONEY

If I could not get another. They are easy of application, and as comfortable as any under garments (A guarantee sent with every Belt that the money will be refunded if they are no as represented). "The grandest curative Body Belt ever offered!"

A Positive Cure

for Rheumatism, Liver, Stomach and Kidney diseases—diseases of the Blood, Skin Diseases, Female Complaints, Paralysis, Neuralgia, Catarrh, Lame Back and all kinds of diseases resulting from impaired nerve force.

Sent to any address on receipt of three dollars, postage order or currency. Send size of waist with order and state if Belt is for lady or gentleman. Address,

Editorial Notes.

WHEAT is lower in the world's market than it has been for 104 years.

LAST Saturday was the 21st anniversary of the battle of Chancellorsville.

THE democrats think it is a terrible thing for Blaine to visit Ohio. It unquestionably is for them.

THE Indian school at Lawrence, has been named "Haskell Institute." A fitting tribute to a brave, faithful, honest and able man.

In his late speeches Carl Shurz has given a good deal of attention to the "political revenue only." That is only another exhibition of the man's monumental egotism.

If beer is saved to this country it will be saved by the democratic party.—K. C. Times.

THAT statement is unquestionably true; and it is for that very reason that the democratic party must stay out.

It is almost incredible that Kansas heads the list of wheat-producing states, with 48,000,000 bushels to her credit. Is there anything in the pages of romance more romantic than this?—Dubuque Herald (August 31).

A REPUBLICAN legislature will amend and strengthen the prohibitory law, making the amendment effective; a democratic legislature will repeal the law, leaving the amendment a dead letter. Which of these two things do you want done?

"A REDUCTION of the surplus must be made."—Thomas A. Hendricks.

If that were the sole issue in this campaign, Mr. Hendricks and his crowd would be elected by common consent. Their record as reducers of surplus is simply unapproachable.

If Blaine had been as bad a man as the independent saints and the democrats try to make him appear, the people would have found him out long ago. Every time for 20 years that the people of Maine have had a chance to do so, they have declared their faith in the integrity and the ability of Jas. G. Blaine. Does any one suppose that a common trickster, a shyster, dishonest demagogue, could so have held their respect and their affection all these years?

WHICH party has served this country best, the republican or the democratic? Which men have served their country best, Blaine and Logan, or Cleveland and Hendricks? Those are the real questions after all, that every patriotic voter ought to ask himself.

THE trouble with the democrats is that they have no songs. No man that is capable of writing music will join the party; and what poet could get inspiration from its record or its candidates? No party can ever succeed without some song that catches the popular ear or heart.

BLAINE was in congress 18 years. During all that time what important measure did he oppose that has since been adopted by the country and declared good? What measure did he favor that has not been adopted and approved by experience? Apply this test to Blaine and then apply it to Hendricks and see which one of them has been the safer leader.

Mankind in this country is divided socially into three classes: rich men, poor men and tramps; religiously into saints, sinners and the Beecher family; and politically into republicans who nominated Blaine, republicans who nominated Cleveland and democrats who won't vote. The rest of the country belongs to Ben Butler.—Ex.

THAT accounts for everybody but St. John. What are you going to do with him?

ALL this democratic talk about re-submission for the sake of "settling the question," is pure poppycock. They don't want it settled. What would the democratic party have to howl about in Kansas if the prohibition question was settled? If they should get a two-thirds majority, they would not re-submit the amendment. They would simply repeal the law, leaving the amendment unsupported, and they would elect a democrat to the United States Senate. That democratic senator is all in the world they are working for, and they depend on republicans to help them get him. Are you going to do it?

THE following item is taken from the Clay Center Dispatch:

Hearing that Salina was a good saloon town, a young man went from this city to engage in the liquor business there. But the day before his arrival six saloon keepers were arrested. The young man sought the advice of J. G. Mohler, one of the smartest lawyers of the State and Chairman of the State Re-submission Convention. Said Mohler: "My advice to you, young man, is to let the business alone. If Glick is elected you will be all right and can open without objection. But if Martin is elected I should rather be in the penitentiary for horse stealing than even arrested for violating the prohibitory law."

E. P. ROX, the most popular American novelist of the present time, will begin in the Current, during the first week in November, the publication of his serial, "An Original Belle," which he believes will prove the greatest story he has ever written. It will include as a feature, the results, most graphically told, of a careful study of the New York riots. The heroine will be of an entirely new type, it being the author's purpose to portray a beautiful and cultivated young woman who, instead of resting content with the admiration of men, devotes her splendid qualities of head and heart to promoting high impulses among the suitors for her smiles, and to making men of those who incline to fashion's follies.

KANSAS is coming to be known as the great Sunflower State. We have a Sunflower railroad. Butler is the leading sunflower county, Eldorado the handsomest of handsome sunflower towns, while the Eldorado Sunflower Republic has no superior in the world. It is proposed by Mr. Fulton, we believe, that we have an Eldorado sunflower day during Fair week. This is a good idea and will take. The town is to be decorated with sunflowers, the streets arched and the stores artistically trimmed with the gay emblems of our greatness. A good suggestion. Let sunflower day be properly observed by everybody.—Eldorado Republican.

THAT all sounds very nice, but when we hear the word "sunflower," our mind always goes back to the time when, as a "bare-foot farmer's boy," we were compelled to spend weary, weary days in the cornfield chopping down the overtopping weeds with a corn knife, and somehow we can't get up any great amount of enthusiasm for these "gay emblems of our greatness."

WHEN Glick went into office the state funds were in a wild cat bank in New York. To-day they are safe in the custody of a sound institution, and the state is simply secured from loss in any event.—Patriot.

The state funds are kept in the state treasury vaults at Topeka. At the time that Glick became governor, Bonnell, Lawson & Simpson of New York City, as sound a banking firm as ever existed in the United States, were the fiscal agents of the state and as such were custodians frequently of various amounts of state funds. If that was a "wild cat" bank, Governor Glick deserves little credit for making the state funds safe, for he never removed the deposits or appointed other fiscal agents, until it had failed. After that occurred, Mr. Glick removed the funds, as a matter of course, and appointed other fiscal agents as any other governor would have done. If Donnell Lawson & Simpson had been a "wild cat" bank, the state would have lost every dollar it had with them, for all Mr. Glick did.

THE blindest, most unreasonable, most illogical democrat in the world is a republican who has flopped. We met such an one the other day and he opened up on us by saying: "This country is approaching a despotism faster than any country in the world ever did; the ruthless heel of the bloated bondholder is even now on our necks; times are harder than they ever were before." We stopped him when he got that far and said: "You have stood in this town and seen ragged farmers pass down these streets, and drive their starved, skinny horses, up to Scott's old store on the corner, and get 'aid' weighed out to them by the pound. And yet you say times are harder now than they were then?" He made no answer. Perhaps the times are harder with him poor fellow, now than they were then and he thought it was so with everybody. He had evidently not seen Senator Ingalls' computation that if the wheat raised in Kansas this year was loaded on to one railroad train, when the engine was at Chicago the rear of the train would be in the neighborhood of Denver; and that if the corn which the state has produced this year was put on a single train, when the engine was at New York City the rear car would be dragging in the Pacific ocean at San Francisco.

With such crops as that it is rather a hopeless task to make the people of Kansas believe that anybody's heel is on their neck to any considerable extent, or that times are harder than they ever were.

TAKE A VOTE ON IT.

ALBERT GRIFFIN, of the Manhattan Nationalist, as staunch a prohibitionist as there is in the state, has proposed that in order to have it decided whether or not a majority of the republican party are in favor of re-submission, the words "For Re-submission," and "Against Re-submission," be printed on all republican tickets, so that every republican can express his wishes by scratching one or the other of the above expressions. This scheme has been endorsed by a good many republican papers, but it seems to us to have at least two serious objections. In the first place it would be a square backward from the position taken by the republicans at the beginning of the campaign. While their platform says nothing about re-submission one way or the other, yet it is well known that the state convention was almost solidly opposed to it; that every motion and resolution even squinting that way, was promptly and overwhelmingly voted down. We started out on the assumption that the republican party was against re-submission, and we are in favor of fighting it out on that line.

In the second place, this proposition looks no farther than the republican party. We have always insisted that prohibition did not properly belong in party politics. This proposition would make it more than ever a party question. It is already reasonably certain that a large majority of republicans are against re-submission. The question to be decided is, Are a majority of all the people of the state against it? To follow out Mr. Griffin's plan would be simply to get up a row among republicans and have nothing settled in the end.

Our plan would be to open up separate polls entirely, and have tickets with nothing printed on them except the words "For Re-submission," and "Against Re-submission." Then let everybody, democrats, greenbacks and republicans, vote their sentiments. That would come as near taking this question out of politics as any thing could. If there was a majority against re-submission, as we firmly believe there would be, that would certainly settle that question for a while. If the vote was taken on republican tickets as Mr. Griffin suggests, the democrats could say "If we had had a chance to vote on that, our votes, together with re-submission republican votes would have given a majority in favor of it."

Or they might say that republicans voted against re-submission to save their ticket. But with entirely separate polls, with tickets that bear the name of no candidate, the vote would be non-partisan and decisive. If a majority of the people are in favor of re-submission we are willing to make the fight over again, for we believe that prohibition would carry the next time, not by five or six thousand but by fifty or sixty thousand. But we don't want to be howled down by a minority.
